No Mote-Hunting
By Aubrey Johnson

Although there is time and place for caring intervention between Christians, no one has the right or duty to “mote hunt” (Matthew 7:1-5)... Christians are to look at others through caring eyes. Traits first perceived as negative may be positive when examined in the light of love. Without being naïve, encouragers should make it a habit to put the best possible construction on any situation. The discourager sees John as stubborn, but the encourager considers him persistent and determined. The critic sees Jane as bossy, but the consoler sees her as an assertive person who gets results. The faultfinder says Bob talks too much, but the positive person says he is outgoing and friendly, a real people-person.

A discourager is like a doctor with a poor bedside manner. Rather than seeing a patient, he sees a diagnosis or a source of income. Impersonal physicians can heal sick bodies, but they fail miserably in treating the fear, anxiety and loneliness that ails their clientele. In contrast, a good doctor sees each patient as a friend and treats the whole person. Encouragers see people while complainers only see problems.

“Therefore if anyone is in Christ he is a new creation: old things have passed away; behold, all things have become new” (2 Corinthians 5:17).

JIGSAW PUZZLES

Charlie Gamble-Fort Recovery, Ohio

I love jigsaw puzzles. I usually select them based upon the number of pieces and the finished picture. Some of the puzzles can be very challenging. Occasionally a piece may look as if it could not possible fit where it does. I guess that's a part of the challenge, though. The thing that helps most is the full picture printed on the box.

I love the Bible. It is made up of a beautiful love story divided into many interlocking pieces. Sometimes, I must really search to find how a particular piece fits. I may overlook connections because I forget to look at the full picture from time to time. God's love for man can be seen from Genesis to Revelation. It is up to me to diligently work to build the picture in my mind.

The successful man likes to present himself as self-made. A wise wife simply smiles and lets it go at that.
